Editors' Note

The editors wish to apologize for having published "Abortion: Parameters for Decision," by R. J. Gerber, in our January 1972 issue, for we have discovered it to be substantially identical with an article by the same author that appeared in the December 1971 issue of the International Philosophical Quarterly. We do not believe that the author could have been unaware that his essay had been accepted by two different journals for publication at approximately the same time. It is our practice to require a statement from our authors that they are in a position to vest copyright in the University of Chicago. In this case the statement was not forthcoming, but our control mechanism failed to detect the omission.
